50th Anniversary Northfield Conferences Founded by Dwight L. Moody

Women's Home Missionary Conference Closed on Thursday

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, one of the foremost Bible teachers in the English-speaking world, delivered the first of six addresses on the "Missionary Manifesto" to the 900 assembled delegates of the Foreign Missionary Conference on Friday last. After reading several verses from each of the Gospels, Dr. Morgan pointed out that these readings were not separate accounts by different authors from their particular angle, but that all the evangelists tell the same story of God's love, His authority, His teachings and His resurrection. These four writers coincide and cover the essential points of missionary effort. It is necessary to have a harmony of the Gospels as a background.

Dr. Morgan said that the four Gospels are interrelated and synoptic, and are needed all together for a complete representation of Jesus. The harmony of the Gospels is important for their spiritual revelations rather than for their chronological order. "Much of our medieval ecclesiastical history is based on a misunderstanding of the Eastern imagery of writers like Isaiah and Ezekiel," the speaker continued. "The lion is symbolic of danger, the ox of service, the figure of man represents man in his highest creation, and the eagle means the deity."

"So in the four Gospels do these symbols appear. In Matthew, Jesus as King, as royalty is depicted. In Mark, it is Jesus as the Servant of God, service. In Luke, Jesus is the perfection of man, sinless humanity, and in John Jesus represents God manifest, the authority of God, the mystery of His personality. The harmony of the Gospels depends upon the understanding of these different points of view. There is a wholeness, a completeness, which can be perceived. "I like the American revised version of the Bible. According to it, when we read in Matthew, a distinction is made between power and authority. All authority is given unto me in heaven and earth. Go ye, therefore, and disciple all nations." This is the message that reveals His royalty. In Mark we have the suffering servant of God sending out his people to all the cosmos. In Luke, we see the matchless perfection of the personality of Jesus. We see the boy, Jesus, His adolescence and His maturity—the perfect man. When Jesus said that you should be witnesses, He did not mean chatterers. Talking is blasphemy unless there is living behind it. In John, we have the authority of God. We have the imperative, the voice of one who speaks because He has the power.

"Notice now the harmony of the commission in relation to the needs of the world. It needs first of all authority in the moral realm. The world is sad, hungry, groaning. It is cynical, satirical, hopeless. Jesus comes and says, 'I am the light of the world.' He injects hope, life and courage into a weary world. That is the great missionary enterprise. The world needs to behold the One Perfect Man. It needs to see God manifest. In Jesus, as in no one else, lies the hope of the world."

That Jesus saw the background of the ideal against which He saw the foreground of the actual, was the contention of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan as he addressed an audience of 2,000 at the Northfield Conference Sunday. "He saw the divine intention, all the beauty, glory and potentialities of man," Dr. Morgan said. "The day we lose that vision, we cut the nerve of all missionary enterprise."

His text was Matthew 9:36-38. Upon reading these passages three things arrest the eye. First, the vision of Christ, or what He saw; second, the passion of Christ, or what He felt; what He did. This is the foundation head of all the activities resulting from the life and teachings of Jesus. "The vision of Christ was the vision of humanity," the speaker continued. "He saw beneath all the externals to the hearts of men. The Syrian crowd He addressed was accidental in the locale, but human in the universal. He saw through the distress, the wickedness, the waywardness of the people, as they never saw themselves. Humanity does not realize its tragedy because of its contentment. Jesus looked upon the scene as a harvest ripe for the gathering. He sensed the great potentialities of wealth, of power, and of achievement in the misery of the people. There was the very genius of His insight."

"What did He do about it? He was moved with compassion. Before the translators modified that startling figure, it read that 'His bowels yearned with love.' Do you catch the frightful physical anguish that is portrayed in that picture? As He saw humanity in its sin and suffering, He was in a turmoil of agony. He lived that terrible experience. He was moved with compassion."

"The result of all His effort was the mission to His disciples. 'Except a grain of wheat falls to the ground and die, it cannot bring forth fruit'.

Times have altered, manners have changed, but Christ is the same. The harvest is as great as ever. What you do about it will depend upon how you see and feel. The harvest out of dereliction comes by way of the Cross."

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan continued his series of Bible studies at the Northfield Foreign Missionary Conference Monday with the subject, "Christ—the Servant," as illustrated in the Gospel of Mark. Dr. Morgan pointed out the fact that Mark was constantly emphasizing Jesus as the servant and not as King or Lord. Not once does Mark report anyone as addressing Jesus as Lord. In the light of the Roman domination at that time, it is interesting to note how Mark conceived power as residing not in the mailed fist but in the pierced hand.

When Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel," he meant the Gospel of the risen Christ. The speaker warned the reader to note carefully what immediately preceded this significant statement, of Jesus. That the Gospel means the resurrection is apparent. Of course, all else is implicated. Dr. Morgan emphasized the fact that the Gospel does not mean His teaching nor His life, and not even His cross, but His resurrection. He is known as the master of all destructive forces."

"The deposit is the risen Christ. The debt is to put ourselves into such contact with the material order that both may be made real through the risen Christ. Through the risen Christ we receive the dynamic. When Jesus urged them to be baptized, He placed the significance upon the receiving of grace and not upon the immersion. Those who have had an experience in Christ and who believe in a risen Lord, can fulfill the great mission and thereby discharge the debt."

The Greeks produced more great men in the period of their supremacy than have been produced in all the millenniums of Chinese history, according to Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, who continued his series of six addresses on the Missionary Manifesto at the Northfield Conference Tuesday. Dr. Morgan was pointing out the Greek influence in the Gospel of Luke, saying that Luke was a Greek and the only Gentile Gospel writer. He wrote to a Greek, Theophilus, the story of one perfect man, Jesus, as we have it in the Gospel of Luke.

Luke said that Jesus was the fulfillment of the Greek ideal of personality. He then went on to show how Jesus shattered all this perfection, mutilated this great gift, but in the end, through His nobility of heart and mind transcended all comparisons. That, said Dr. Morgan, is the story of Luke.

The speaker went on to say that the disciples of Jesus were witnesses of three things. The first was the fulfillment of the initial economy of God as given in the Old Testament in the books of Moses, the Prophets and the Psalms. "In Moses we have the divine will expressed in human law. In the Prophets we have the correctors of the wayward people, and in the Psalms we have the hopes and aspirations of the Jews." Of the Psalms, the speaker said that every good mood can be suited. "Are you sad, glad, mad or bad? A psalm of anger is far better an outlet than vile profanity."

The second thing of which they were witnesses was that Christ suffered and rose again. In the Messiah two offices merged, king and priest. The third thing was the moral reconstruction possible. These three things they had been witness of, and without this evidence, no one today has any message. It is our deposit.

What is our debt, our obligation? An examination of the word witness will show that it means martyr. "Ye are Martyrs of these things." Death does not make a martyr; it reveals the martyr. "Ye are martyrs, witnesses, credentials, evidences, samples." The dynamic is the submission to the Holy Spirit. The disciples were to tarry for the coming of the Spirit, but we can have it as soon as we make ourselves ready for our acceptance. By a union together with God through His Spirit, we receive the dynamic for fulfilling our obligation.

Wednesday at the Northfield Conference, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan spoke on the Gospel of John, Chap. 20, and verses 21-23, showing the significance of the commission of Jesus to His disciples. He said that John's account of the resurrection was that of an eye-witness. The great emphasis in John comes on the moral reconstruction of man and of the creation. It is the remission of sins.

As on other days, Dr. Morgan divided his subject into three main heads: the deposit, the debt, and the dynamic. The deposit is the remission of sins. To remit means to forgive, a setting free from failure. "Our human forgiveness is not so complete," the speaker went on to say. "Jesus went further than forgiveness. It was for Him a setting free of failure, of guilt, of pollution. When sin is thus forgiven, there comes a new vision of God as Love, and a new motive of life. If the sin is retained, it has an abiding result on the personality. There is no clear vision of God, and the motive is self-centered. In the missionary enterprise, are we not often in danger of forgetting that this is the main purpose of our message, the moral reconstruction of man?" In understanding the debt that is ours, the speaker suggested a helpful study for leisure moments. Underline every passage that uses the word sent in John. "Sent of the Father" occurs very frequently. The Son was sent of the Father for manifesting God, and to co-operate with God. "When Jesus breathed on them, they received prophetically the Holy Spirit. That was the dynamic. As the Father had sent Him, so He was sending them. All the work of Jesus was through the Spirit; and so, He said, should the same fellowship abide with them. The mystic power of presenting Christ to our fellow-men for moral reconstruction is the commission."

Mrs. Rush Speaks of Conditions in Canada Under Government Control

Stating that conditions in Canada under government control were abominable, and that we in the United States should not be misled, Mrs. W. Rush, daughter of Hugh Allen, Member of Parliament for Ontario, Canada, Monday urged the 1,000 women assembled at the Northfield Conference to carry on the fight for prohibition.

By a rising vote, the Conference expressed its desire to thank Mr. Allen, M. P., and the other members of the Canadian Parliament who introduced in caucus the resolution against rum-running across the border to the United States, a friendly nation. Great enthusiasm and applause followed the statement of Mrs. Rush. Although most of the delegates were from Massachusetts, there were representatives from New York and New Jersey who received the news with great satisfaction.

Work of Conference to Date

Four of the regular Summer Conferences at East Northfield have now been concluded. This week-end a respite occurs during which preparations are being made for the Religious Education group, which meets on Monday, when 600 are expected to arrive, principally from New England. That Conference will continue until the 30th. The Tercentenary Celebration at Northfield will take place for three days between the 30th of July and August 1st. Immediately following that, the Fiftieth General Conference for Christian Workers will convene and remain until Aug. 18. The seventh and final conference will be that of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor, Aug. 18-25.

On Thursday of this week, the 27th Women's Foreign Missionary Conference closed. As the meetings progressed, the enthusiasm and numbers increased. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, who is to assume the Chair of New Testament Interpretation at Gordon College at Boston this fall, has been giving a well-attended series of Bible studies on the Missionary Manifesto of Christ to the Church each morning at 9 o'clock. Taking specific passages from each of the four Gospels, Dr. Morgan has shown the completeness of the commission to his followers. Matthew emphasizes the authority of Jesus, Mark the service of Jesus, Luke the ideal personality and John the manifestation of God. Under three main heads, the speaker has presented each Gospel as respects the commission to his disciples.

Prof. Milton T. Stauffer of the Chair of Missions at Rutgers has been holding daily classes on the Present Hour in Foreign Missions. He has grouped the characteristics as follows: Growing interrelatedness and interdependence of life around the world, the increasing magnitude and complexity of the missionary enterprise, the facing of wide dissimilarity in attitudes and practices in different areas, the redefinition of the old terms in the missionary enterprise, the extreme embarrassment for the Christian church at the present time, the period of recovery, the period of evaluation and reverent appreciation of other races and civilizations, revolutionary changes in administration control, the period of creation and spiritual enrichment, the period of great fruitage, the adolescent period, and watchful waiting.

Miss Margaret Applegarth of New York city has been conducting classes in Methods for Young People, which have been of a very practical nature. In speaking about meetings, she said that everyone should have a threefold purpose: to stimulate thought, to create a conviction from the consideration of facts, and to produce activity resulting from a changed attitude. Some of the subjects discussed have been leadership, stewardship, posters, carnivals and race prejudice. An interesting definition for race prejudice is being down on what you are not up on. She said that the young men and women of today can find plenty to interest them in the program of the church, foremost being the missionary enterprise. It is a challenge to the intelligence, and of inspiration to the heart to be of service to one's fellow-man.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody Appeals for Support of Baby Volstead Act

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, speaking before a group of 900 women many of them delegates from Massachusetts, stressed the present issue in this State regarding the repeal of the Concurrent State Enforcement Law, known as the Baby Volstead Law. She referred to the landing of the Arbella, to its little group of men and women whose first act was to kneel with their leader, Winthrop, and thank God for His guidance.

Through these three centuries Massachusetts has, as a State, recognized Almighty God, and has been in harmony with the policies of our nation, culminating in the Federal Constitution.

She appealed for faith in God, faith in Massachusetts and in the supreme law of the land, with faith in our ability to overcome evil.

Mrs. Peabody said: "Even in the Old Testament, bad men, weak men, greedy politicians sought power for evil ends. In our democracy we cannot expect with our best leadership to survive without opposition which today is against our Federal Constitution and laws. The movement is not by the people, but by brewers and certain rich men allied with an anti-Constitutional group, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. They propose to buy this State, according to their own statement before the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, which we quote:

"Our chief plan at present, in impressing our dry Congress with the fact that the country is mostly wet, is the holding of State-wide referendums, such as last year carried on successfully in Wisconsin and before in Montana, Nevada and New York. This year Massachusetts will come first, with other States afterward as fast as we can reach them. For this there will be required over $1,000,000 to be used this year, of which $200,000 has already been subscribed."

The reason for this effort on the part of certain rich men allied with the outlawed liquor men is given also in this testimony. The chairman states:

"Irenee duPont made the statement that one of his companies would save $10,000,000 in corporation taxes if we should have the British tax on beer. If we should have back the right to manufacture beer as we did in 1914 and if we should tax it at the British rate, the income would be $1,320,000, or more than the net amount received from income and corporation taxes. There would be no snooters in business offices examining books." Is there any way to meet this powerful combination in favor of the outlawed liquor traffic which debauches men and politics, wrecked homes and lives? The women of Massachusetts hold the power through prayer, faith and untiring effort.

In the great Victory chapter, Hebrews XI, we read of the triumph of faith and there find courage and strength for this crisis. "The waters of the Red Sea divided and the people of God passed over on dry land, which their enemies essaying to do were drowned." This sounds hopeful for our cause.

This is the most serious crisis our country has faced since 1861, and involves secession from our National Constitution and turning over Massachusetts to dangerous groups opposed to our laws, and responsible always for corruption and wickedness leading to lawlessness and crime.

To bring back the licensed sale of liquor under our Government is to bring back the old conditions of the saloon, or worse. The heavily financed propaganda declares there is no intention "to bring back the saloon."

That, however, will be the result, and unless Christian women assume their full responsibility as citizens at primary and polls, Massachusetts will go down to dishonor in her Tercentenary year.

Women of Connecticut Valley Visit Conference

More than 200 women and a number of men from the missionary societies along the Connecticut River Valley attended the Northfield Conference on Tuesday, visiting classes and listening to the address of Dr. G. Campbell Morgan on the subject of the Missionary Manifesto. A lunch was served on the lawn at noon. In the afternoon a special service was held at which a number of the leaders from the Conference spoke. Mrs. A. G. Moody of East Northfield was in charge of the arrangements.

Dr. Harrison Preaches Sunday in Sage Chapel

The preacher at East Northfield on Sunday will be the Rev. J. East Harrison, formerly head of the Bible department of Mount Hermon school. He will speak at Sage chapel at 10:45 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.

Personal Mention

Louis C. Shaw of Warner, N. H., called on the Morgans, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Jessie L. Leonard, State motion picture director for the Massachusetts W. C. T. U., is staying this week with Mrs. Minnie L. Morgan, Franklin County W. C. T. U. president. Mrs. Leonard is also editor of The Sun, Winthrop's pioneer newspaper, this year celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding.

On Tuesday last Edward Morgan and Victor Smith went to the Gardner Museum to sing with 35 selected members of the Harvard Glee Club, under the direction of Prof. A. T. Da Davidson, at a reception given in honor of Boston's distinguished guests, among whom were ex-President Calvin Coolidge, Governor Frank G. Allen and several foreign ambassadors. Mrs. Esther Williams and Richard Danforth also went with Mr. Morgan and Mr. Smith.

Forest B. Estabrook of New Milford, Pa., announces the marriage of his daughter, Beatrice, to Howard Barker Williams of Springfield, Mass. The wedding took place July 5 in Surfside, Conn., at the summer home of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Sweet of Springfield.

Warren Whitman returned last Saturday from a motor trip of two weeks, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Payson and daughter, Patty. They spent part of the time at Canton, N. Y., where Mr. Payson has a residence. From there they made many side trips to places of interest in the Thousand Islands and into Canada, visiting Ottawa and Montreal.

Kenneth Ackerman motored to Newport over the week-end to bring his mother to Northfield to attend the Conference. She is stopping with Mrs. Carrie Button.

The work of repairing the Unitarian church is rapidly nearing completion, and in its new coat of paint adds greatly to the attractiveness of the town center. It almost seems as though one of the old landmarks had been removed.

Mrs. Ruth Marsden is visiting her mother, Mrs. Fred Merrifield.

Roger M. Clough and son, Arthur, and family of Meriden, Conn., were guests of his brother, J. E. Clough, over Sunday.

The Log-Chopping Contest

Champion Peter McLaren successfully defended his title in a log-chopping contest at Miller & Burnett's store in East Northfield last Friday evening. McLaren chopped through the 18-inch oak log in exactly 30 seconds, while it took the best local chopper 1 minute and 5 seconds. Roy Dresser, Vernon Edson and Jerry Stearns were the best against the champion.

State Certificate Awarded

Owen Stacey, East Northfield, who is employed as a carpenter at the Mount Hermon school, has been notified by the State Department of Education that he has satisfactorily completed a correspondence course in mechanical drawing and has been awarded a State University Extension certificate.

Edward M. Kiely

Edward M. Kiely, for over 50 years a resident of Northfield, passed away last Friday, and was laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery last Monday morning. Services were held in St. Patrick's church at 10:30 a. m., Rev. Father Carey officiating. The pallbearers were Lawrence Quinlan, William and John Dale, John Callaghan, Orelan and James Kelly. Mr. Kiely was born in County Waterford, Ireland, April 4, 1853, migrating to this country as a young man. He leaves a brother, John J. Kiely of Holyoke, and two daughters, Miss Margaret Kiely, who nursed him during his long illness, and Mrs. Hurley of New York city.

Among those from out-of-town who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. John Caughlen and son of Hartford and James Kelly of Holyoke, Mass.

Miss Viva Fay Richardson Writes of Her Experiences Abroad

June 24, 1930.
(On Board the S.S. Adriatic)

Here we are in Gellnock ready to land and go on to Glasgow. It has been simply a glorious trip, and I cannot say enough in its praise. I have not been seasick in the least. The salt air has been a tonic and I feel like a new person. It was a thrilling sight when we first saw Ireland and then followed along the shores. The stewards whistled Irish songs and there was a real Irish atmosphere around Emerald Isle! It is well named. I never saw such green before nor such romantic looking country. Then we went to Scotland and everything since has been magnificent. Mr. Pattison has been so kind to me and my companion. He has helped, too, about English money. I'm quite an expert now, trading rapidly while I look it up in my note book between times.

We were at the Grosvenor hotel in Edinburgh. This is a nice hotel and we had four sightseeing trips from this city this morning. We visited castles dating from 1400, and all kinds of Scottish history fresh in our minds. The great impression one gets is the shortness of life against all this age—the speed and newness of America. The Scotch people are tremendously courteous. This is a great experience. The world seems big, we ourselves, very small, and troubles of little moment. That's what an ocean trip and travel seems to do. I've seen a castle 1,000 years old. It will be good to be back, too, I can tell you. I look forward to hearing from you when I reach London.

VIVA F. RICHARDSON.

Regrets from Former Resident

Dorchester Center,
July 11, 1930.

Mr. Lucky Clapp.
Dear Sir—I want to thank the committee for the notice and invitation to attend "Old Home Week." It will be two weeks earlier than I had planned to be in Northfield. Will be there in spirit. Am glad that the present generation is showing the zeal and aspirations of past ones; well that we may emulate them. With our softness in the 20th century's wonderful achievements, it does one good to reflect over the environments of the early settlers. Northfield has made its mark, down through the centuries, through its citizens from the first white settlers, through the emancipation to the present age. Now in the bonds of peace, under the fatherhood of God. And well may it be proud through its educational and religious spheres. I saw an upright looking young man here in the city with the name Mount Hermon on his suitcase. If I could, I would have grasped his hand and said that it is a good recommendation; if you live up to the ideals and principles set forth in that school. The tablet of D. L. Moody in our Court street is a deep reminder of Northfield. We can't feel too harsh towards the Indians through their atrocities. Being the first settlers and 100 per cent Americans, with their limitations, trained in the use of the bow and arrow, they felt they were being intruded upon and Northfield has many reminders throughout its township.

Respectfully yours,
ALBERT S. BRIGHAM,
75 Fuller St.
Dorchester Center.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our neighbors and friends for the many beautiful flowers and spiritual bouquets sent us in our bereavement.

MARGARET KIELY, J. J. KIELY,
MR. and MRS. JOHN HURLEY and FAMILY.

LEGAL NOTICE

Changes in Fish and Game Laws

Effective August 1st, 1930

A sporting license is required of all minors who have reached their fifteenth birthday for fishing in any of the inland waters or for hunting where previously the minimum age at which a minor was required to purchase a sporting license for fishing was eighteen years.

A sporting license is required for fishing in all of the inland waters of the Commonwealth where previously a license was required only for stocked inland waters.

The age limit for minor trapping licenses are now fifteen to eighteen years, where previously the range of eligibility extended from twelve to eighteen years.

Miss Avelina Lorenzana Appeals for Independence of Philippines

Speaking in favor of independence for the Philippines Sunday at the Northfield Conference, Miss Avelina Lorenzana, by many called the Margaret Slattery of the Philippines and one of the very few Filipino girls who are studying in this country, said that their children cannot be taught the fundamental elements of citizenship, so necessary to the stability of society, because the United States does not allow them citizenship, nor is Filipino citizenship recognized. "To produce the best in our people," Miss Lorenzana said, "it is essential that we have a definite standing in the family of nations."

Miss Lorenzana is the daughter of the Rev. Cecilio Lorenzana, Moderator of the United Evangelical Church of the Philippines. She received her school and college education in the Islands, and for the past two years she has been doing graduate work at the Northwestern University at Evanston and at Boston University. She is planning to enter religious education among her people. Her purpose in further study in the United States has been to achieve a better understanding of the relations between the two peoples as well as the attainment of more efficient methods of education.

Not only as an advocate but also as an example of Filipino accomplishment, Miss Lorenzana justifies the highest hopes. As a speaker she holds her audience from the very first word to the end, both on account of the force of her argument and the pleasing manner of her personality. She is a keen character analyst, the responsiveness of her audience showing how quickly she has acquired the art of successful public speaking. Many of the young people of her country are studying law, which may be one reason for her proficiency.

"We want the United States to give us independence by constitutional law," Miss Lorenzana said. She hopes that this country will gradually withdraw its authority, eventually giving complete independence. Although grateful for what America has done, nevertheless, at the future approaches, it is necessary that its promises and possibilities be fulfilled. It is of vital importance that exploitation of the land by certain economic interests in America be prevented. Most people in America have little knowledge and interest in the Philippines, and consequently it is easy for those groups who are financially concerned to exercise influence favorable chiefly to themselves.

In regard to prohibition in this country, she thought there were altogether too many violations of the law. Prohibition is not in force in the Philippines, since their Legislature rejected it. "We believe in temperance."

When Miss Lorenzana appeared in her long skirt and flowing train, she was asked if she did not possess a grass skirt, which most Americans consider the native dress of the women of the Pacific Islands. She replied that she was wearing the regular woman's costume, and that the grass skirt is worn only by a few who live in the outlying districts.

The woman has a position of great influence in the Philippines. She holds the purse strings, the husband going to her for even his personal funds. Man tries to curb her influence by demanding long, inconvenient dresses with long trains, but at the same time he conceives her as angelic because of the protruding flares of the shoulders of her gown. "The women are just as ambitious and just as professional as the men; in many cases, women are highly Occidentalized Orientals."

Ford Industrial Exhibit

The Ford industrial exhibit which has been at Brattleboro this past week has excited a great deal of interest and enthusiasm on the part of dealers as well as the public. The owner and driver of a car is better able to care for it, both body and mechanism, when he has had an opportunity to examine closely the details and learn how each and every part is produced and its relation to other parts. He also has a great deal more pride in his car when he sees at first hand the care with which it is prepared.

This information was imparted in a most interesting and instructive manner both in moving pictures and display parts, including a car divided in half, both body and engine, and a set of limit gauges to which all parts must conform. The exhibit also includes a complete line of this year's models. From Brattleboro the caravan goes to Amherst and works its way south to Cuba and South America.

Conference of Religious Education Will Open on Monday

The 27th annual session of the Northfield Conference of Religious Education, which opens July 21 and continues until the afternoon of July 30, will offer 35 different courses of education, officers and teachers in church schools, and for young people who are seeking inspiration and practical help for personal living and for church work. Methods of conducting various departments of a church school, studies in psychology, organization, materials of instruction and numerous special courses covering various phases of Christian educational activity, make up the curriculum list.

Hon. Robert C. Parker, Westfield, is chairman of the board of managers of the Conference; Rev. Herbert W. Gates, Boston, general secretary of Congregational Education Society, is dean of the Conference; Rev. Ivan S. Nowlan, Boston, general secretary of the Massachusetts Council of Religious Education, is assistant dean, and the registrar and treasurer is Bryant Nichols, from whom full information regarding the conference may be secured by addressing him at Room 609, 1 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

A new feature provided for the first time this year is the teaching of courses in methods, materials and administration, for the elementary grades—beginners, primary and junior—by the laboratory or demonstration method. In these courses, the first period each day will be a class session in which children of the various groups will be taught, with the students who are delegates at the conference as observers and helpers. This will be followed by a period of discussion of points illustrated in the class session, thus making the work more practical and effective. The faculty leaders for these three courses, respectively, are Miss Mary Sherburne, director of children's division, Vermont Council of Religious Education; Miss Jeanette E. Perkins of New York, author of various books for children, and Miss Ethel M. Baader of New York, author and teacher.

Another new plan for this session is the course in choral singing and church music given by Miss Mabel Parkes Friswell, instructor in choral singing in Boston University School of Education and director of the young people's choir in Needham Congregational church. Students taking the course for credit will constitute a chorus choir which will sing at the daily worship services held in Sage chapel. These chapel assemblies will make high points of the conference each day. A brief period of worship will be followed by short talks by the chaplain, Rev. Dwight Bradley, pastor of the First Church in Newton, who has been very successful in developing the worship service in his own church. Assisting Mr. Bradley in the musical part of these assemblies, Miss Friswell will be soloist, Mrs. Agnes R. Allen, organist and choir director of Bethany Congregational church, Quincy, organist, and Mrs. Alfrida H. Hoglund of Hartford, Conn., pianist and accompanist.

Amongst the members of the faculty are Miss Susan Andrews, Portland, Me.; Miss Lullona M. Barker, Watertown; Miss Bessie L. Doherty, Needham; Rev. Stanley Cummings, Bennington, Vt.; Miss Dorothy Dolan, Melrose; Rev. Ivar Hellstrom, minister in charge of religious education of Riverside church, New York; Mrs. Ivar Hellstrom, formerly executive secretary, national girls' work board, Religious Education Council of Canada; Carl A. Hempel, Lynn; Rev. Charles C. Keith, pastor of Eliot Congregational church, Roxbury; Rev. John I. Lobingier, secretary of Missionary Education and World Friendship, Congregational Education Society; Dr. Albert A. Madsen, Gloucester; Rev. Roy L. Minich, Maiden; Rev. Miles W. Smith, national director of intermediate work, American Baptist Publication Association; Rev. Harry T. Stock, secretary of student life of young people's work, Congregational Education Society.

Young men and women 16 to 22 years of age constitute a young people's division of the conference, meeting with the adult delegates in all conference activities, but having their own location on the campus, their own organization, and several courses of study which are given to them and not to adults. In 1929 over 400 young people made up this group and it is expected that at least as many will form a part of the anticipated total registration of about 700 for this month's gathering. The dean in charge of this young people's division is Rev. Cornelius E. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church, Auburn-dale. He will be assisted by Miss Marion D. Brown, director of girls; Richard H. Lee, director of boys, and Mrs. Stanley L. Cummings, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Lee, Miss Bernice J. Richmond and Mrs. Mary J. Williams.

Conference Votes to Raise Fund
for Publishing

With the approval of the Federation of Foreign Missionary Boards, the Northfield Conference, numbering a thousand women, Sunday voted to raise $25,000 for the purpose of publishing books and magazines for women and children in all foreign lands. Already in China a magazine called Happy Childhood has been published in spite of the revolution. The Northfield Conference has been actively supporting this magazine. In Korea and Egypt the movement is to take place which will tend to enlighten that part of the population which has always lived in darkness.

A gift of more than $500 was raised Sunday to establish a magazine for Burmese children, in loving memory of the devoted and consecrated life of William A. Montgomery of Rochester, who died last week. Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, translator of the New Testament, was to have been the speaker on Sunday. For 25 years she, together with Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, has been active in the Northfield Conference, and it was quite fitting that the memorial should take form in this way.

In a telegram, Mrs. Montgomery urged a greater interest in disseminating Christian literature. The Conference was pleased to hear that in India two publishers have already asked for the responsibility of putting out the Treasure Chest Magazine for children. Plans are under way for translating the magazine into eight different dialects and languages. Mexico has officially requested that the magazine, the Torchlight, be started and sent to the women and children there. The Conference hopes that funds will be forthcoming for that purpose, and that the magazine be published in memory of Alice Kyle, for many years treasurer of Christian literature for women.

To Relive Stirring Battles

Linked together by a lifetime of personal friendship and military association dating back to the Civil War, Major-General Samuel S. Sumner, U. S. A. (retired), and Brigadier-General William H. Bisbee, likewise retired, will, on July 15, relive in fancy the stirring battles that made American history since the days of Grant.

The incident which will give rise anew to the well-springs of patriotic fervor in the memories of these gray-haired will be their receipt of a place on the honorary staff of Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, M. N. G., who will be chief marshal of the big military parade scheduled by the Massachusetts Tercentenary commission as a feature of its celebration of its celebration in Boston next month.

Not only are these three generals life-long friends, but their military careers have been closely intermingled in a dramatic skien of American history. All three are Boston men.

General Sumner is a veteran of five wars. A mere strapping in his teens fired by patriotic ardor at the outbreak of the struggle to free the slaves, he enlisted as a private and emerged from the Civil War as a staff officer.

For a decade following his life was spent on the Western frontier subduing the Indians. As captain of the 5th U. S. Cavalry at that time, he has many reminiscences of contact with Colonel William Cody (Buffalo Bill), whose exploits as an Indian scout and fighter have been immortalized in the minds of Young America.

Later came the Spanish-American war, and as Major-General of Volunteers, he was in command of the cavalry division at the Battle of San Juan Hill, up which Colonel Theodore Roosevelt made his charge at the head of his "Rough Riders."

Duty then called General Sumner to China where, in command of a brigade of United States reserves, he assisted in quelling the Boxer uprising at Tien-Tsin. Returning from the Philippines in 1903, he was placed in command of the military division of the Pacific, a post which he held until his retirement in 1906.

No less noteworthy has been the career of Brigadier-General Bisbee, who has four wars to his credit and a long list of stirring engagements, dating from the Civil War, comprehending 25 years of Indian fighting on the Western frontier, and including the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection. It was because of his distinguished conduct during the Spanish-American War as Colonel of the 13th U. S. Infantry, that he was elevated to the rank of Brigadier-General of the Army from which he retired in 1902.

Farm and Home Week

At least 3,000 Massachusetts fruit men, poultrymen, dairymen and others interested in the numerous phases of agriculture, and 500 home-makers are making plans to attend the annual Farm and Home Week program of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, July 29 to Aug. 1.

We have every reason to believe, declares W. A. Munson, director of the Extension Service, that the number attending this year's Farm and Home Week program will be as large as in former years, for the programs of the 12 groups holding meetings during the week are unusually strong.

Home-making, fruit growing, poultry raising, dairying, sheep raising, bee-keeping, cash crops, tobacco and onion growing, and others are among the programs scheduled.

More than 60 State and nationally known speakers are scheduled to appear, representing, in addition to Massachusetts, eight agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington. A number of these speakers are practical farmers and home-makers from Massachusetts. Complete programs may be obtained by writing to the Extension Service, M. A. C., Amherst, Mass.

A Poem

Old age with idle days hath come;
naught else
But useless weight I seem, yet grant,
great God,

While I do live, my life may be a praise
Unceasing, and a glory to Thy holy name.

May I not live and pay no homage meet;
But rather death soon end my fruitless years.

Among Thy saints on earth I would declare
Thy words of life, or sing Thy praise above.

In life, in death, may I be Thine, O
Christ.
My life is Thine alone, and Thine my death.

The above lines are translated from a poem in Latin by Rev. Peter Bulk-eley.

Rev. Peter Bulkley was born in 1583 in Odell, England. He was a fellow of Saint John's College, Cambridge, and succeeded his father in the ministry at Odell. He came to New England as a Puritan clergyman in 1635 and founded the church in Concord, Mass. The injunction to New England is an extract from one of his sermons, a number of which were compiled and printed in London in 1651 under the title, "The Gospel Covenant; of The Covenant of Grace Opened."

The poem was written when he was old and ill, but God granted his prayer. He recovered and preached nearly two years longer, dying in his 77th year.

Our daily tells us that a young Kansas has discovered another planet. It does look like we had better learn how to run the planets we already have before we bother our minds about discovering a new lot.

Repeta-Zwenenski

Monday morning, in St. Patrick's church, the wedding of Miss Mary Repeta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Repeta of Upper Falls, and John Zwenenski of Turners Falls was solemnized before a large gathering of friends of the bride and bridegroom. The bride was attended by Miss Julia Zwenenski, sister of the bridegroom, and Charles Repeta was best man. The bridesmaids were the misses Anna Zwenenski, Mary Botze, Staffie Woznaika, Alice Repeta and Cor Smolen. The ushers were Messrs. Patrick Maciak, John and Joe Zwenenski, Joe Hanafin and John Harnak. The flower girls were Angie Silva and Elizabeth Batinski. After the service, the guests repaired to the home of the bride, where the wedding breakfast was served. There were about 400 guests assembled to extend congratulations to the happy couple. Mr. and Mrs. Zwenenski will make their home in Greenfield after their return from their honeymoon.

"The Flying Yankee"

A green and gold locomotive, resplendent with nickel-plated cylinder-heads and carrying a brass plate reading "The Flying Yankee" at her front, last week added to the distinctiveness of the Boston & Maine railroad's crack, non-stop express as it races through Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine on its daily run in both directions between Boston and Portland.

The "Flying Yankee," hauled by a locomotive painted in the conventional black has, since April 28, 1929, been making a run that has brought the train to the fore among the fastest in the country, averaging 51 miles an hour on its entire trip.

The newly-named locomotive, on which two tons of green, broken by gold stripes and shining nickel, replace the sombre black, will be seen at various points on the Boston & Maine system during the next few days, as she is broken in during preliminary runs prior to taking up the more strenuous task of hauling the steel Pullmans and coaches of the "Flying Yankee" 114.6 miles between Boston and Portland in the fast time of 2 hours and 15 minutes.

The buff and blue of the locomotives "Paul Revere" and "William Dawes, Jr.," which haul the "Minute Man," Chicago express of the Boston & Maine, pale in comparison with the new motive power of the "Flying Yankee."

The upper part of its great boiler jacket, surmounted by the steel dome and sand dome, steel turrets and the locomotive bell, is painted a green, matching the grass on New England's hills. Below that, the running gear is a darker green, the color of the pines. Both are striped with gold. A stripe of gold marks the running board the entire length of the engine, and the tender, painted the darker green, bears the Boston & Maine insignia in gold. The wheels are tinged with silver paint. Below the cab window, also in letters of gold, is painted "The Flying Yankee."

The engine arrived in Boston yesterday from the Boston & Maine's Billerica shops where the new trimmings were applied. It is of the Pacific type and has been formerly been known as "Pacific 3689."

A tongue twister: "How many sniffs of sifted snuff would a snuff sniffer sniff, if a sifted snuff sniffer sniffed sifted snuff?"

In the light of the numerous polls taken by the Literary Digest, we are at somewhat of a loss to understand the growing postal deficit.

Claud Callan sums it up this way: when you learn to do without the things you can't afford, you are a success.

What a lot of folks there are, notes Tom Thompson, who want to skim off all the cream when they haven't done any of the milking.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

A CAPELET BERTHA

Bodices must give evidence of endless possibilities this summer, says Paris, and more often than not all this new bodice interest centers in the collar treatment. For collars are delightfully capricious—and the only thing one can state with certainty about them is that they will be pretty, graceful, and picturesque. Thus, much of the charm of the princess frock above rightly depends on its wide bertha collar, which ripples over the shoulders and is caught in a knot at the waist. The circular skirt adopts an outline which reverses the V of the neck, and follows the line of the cape in back.

THE NEW FORD TUDOR SEDAN

YOU are buying proved performance when you buy a Ford. You know it has been built for many thousands of miles of satisfactory, economical service.

Letters from users in every part of the world show the value of the sound design of the car, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

Further tribute to the sturdiness, reliability and general all-round performance of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by government bureaus, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most cases, the new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering speed and power, safety, comfort, ease of control, oil and gas consumption, low yearly depreciation, and low cost of up-keep.

They have found, as you will find, that the Ford embodies every feature you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Let Hot Sandwiches Help

Keep Friendships Warm

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company.

THE little suppers we serve when people drop in informally to pass the evening, can be made most enjoyable affairs. The food served does not need to be elaborate, but the menu should be carefully planned so it will be attractive without requiring too much preparation.

Hot sandwiches are especially nice to serve on such occasions, and they can be made very easily and quickly. Served with Spanish Queen Olives, pickles and relishes, such sandwiches form a complete party meal, though crisp cups of lettuce, filled with Chili Sauce, Sandwich Relish or cole slaw, are favored by many hostesses as a delicious accompaniment.

Serve some of these appetizing sandwiches at your next party, for everyone is sure to like them:

Open Club Sandwich:—Cut bread 1/3 inch thick and toast quickly so it will not be hard and dry. Then butter each slice. On one slice place a lettuce leaf, and then a slice of tomato. Spread with Salad Cream, and a tart spicy dressing, which is perfect for this type of sandwich. Next add two slices of crisp bacon. On a second slice of buttered toast place a slice of chicken or other cold meat—it may be veal or pork, or in an emergency, a layer of deviled ham. Sprinkle with shredded lettuce or watercress, and top with a spoonful of Sandwich Relish. Arrange the two slices of toast on a plate, and garnish with slices of tomato or Fresh Cucumber Pickles.

Toasted Ham and Olive Sandwich:—Brown thin slices of ham, or baked ham (or you could substitute bacon for the ham). Then add 1/4 cup Stuffed Spanish Olives, sliced, and heat in the hot fat.

Place the ham or bacon on slices of buttered toast, add the Stuffed Spanish Olives, cover with additional slices of toast. Cut in half and serve with a tiny crisp lettuce cup filled with Chili Sauce.

Supper Sandwich:—Slice white bread 1/4 inch thick, and spread each slice with a thin layer of Prepared Mustard Sauce. Place the contents of one can of tuna fish, and mix with Sandwich Relish, using half as much Sandwich Relish as Fish. Spread generously between slices of bread, and press firmly together. Dip in slightly beaten egg to which has been added 1/2 cup milk, and salt and pepper to season. Brown quickly in a skillet with several tablespoons butter, and drain on unglazed paper. Serve very hot, garnish with watercress, or a tiny lettuce cup filled with India Relish.

Peanut Butter, Bacon, and Chili Sauce Sandwich:—For each sandwich toast two slices of bread on one side only. Spread the untoasted side of one slice with Peanut Butter blended with Chili Sauce. Place slices of crisp bacon on the untoasted side of the other slice, and put the two together. Garnish with Preserved Sweet Gherkins.

Double Decker Sandwich:—Cut rye, white or whole wheat bread in thin slices, allowing 3 slices for each sandwich. Spread with Prepared Mustard Sauce. Place a leaf of lettuce and a thin piece of American Cheese spread with Prepared Mustard Sauce on one slice, and cover with a second piece of bread. On this lay boiled ham or tongue, and spread generously with Sandwich Relish. Cover with a third piece of bread. Press firmly together and cut in half diagonally. Place a Pickle Fan on top each half. This may be served with cole slaw.

To Make Pickle Fans:—Using Preserved Sweet Gherkins, cut very thin parallel sections almost the length of each pickle. Then carefully spread out the sections like a fan.

Prices of Beef Lower

Consumers should find current prices of beef considerably lower, C. B. Denman, member Federal Farm Board, said in a statement issued recently. "Wholesale prices of dressed beef," Mr. Denman explained, "have declined sharply during recent months and, according to figures issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, wholesale prices of beef at Chicago, for example, are $4.50 to $7.00 per cwt., or 20 to 30 per cent lower than a year ago. The greater reductions have been on the cheaper grades of beef, which run from 25 to 37 per cent lower, while the top and medium grades have been reduced from 20 to 28 per cent below prices of a year ago.

The New England Quality Products Label

The New England Quality Products Label for farm produce may be displayed on roadside stands of outstanding merit in Massachusetts through a plan which is being developed by the State Department of Agriculture. A number of roadside stand owners who see the great advantage in this label as a means of identification of high quality, locally grown products have asked why it could not be displayed as a badge of quality over the stand as a whole. In response to this suggestion, Dr. A. W. Gilbert, Commissioner of Agriculture, has had a plan worked out which will soon be submitted to the owners of a good many stands. If enough of them approve of the proposition, which is entirely voluntary, the system will be put in force promptly.

The plan, as suggested, is for the State Department to have some handsomely painted signs, exact reproductions on a large scale of the New England Quality Products Label which is being used on eggs, maple sugar, strawberries, potatoes, turkeys, day-old chicks and other farm products. Under the plan, the department would lease the sign to the owner of the roadside stand for a year with the right to take it back if the owner did not live up to the provisions stipulated by the department.

One of the important provisions which has been suggested is that no stand shall be allowed the use of the sign unless there is sold on the stand at least two products which themselves bear the label. If a stand owner sold eggs and apples bearing the label, he could market other produce not bearing the label. The combination might be eggs and tomatoes, or tomatoes and bunched beets. It would not matter so long as two such products were offered for sale at the stand.

The most important requirement is that all products offered for sale shall be fresh and of good quality. It is also required that at least one-half of the products on the stand should have been raised on the owner's farm or should have been bought direct from some neighboring farm or from some Massachusetts co-operative association.

This would make it possible for a man who had an abundance of some kinds of vegetables, but was short on some other kinds, to buy from his neighbors and thus get an attractive assortment. It would, at the same time, prevent his securing the majority of what he offered for sale from a city commission house or from any distant source.

Other requisites in the tentative plan are that the stands shall be clean and sanitary, that they shall have ample parking space for automobiles, and that they shall not be located at any place on the highway which might endanger traffic a number of cars stopped there.

"Enforcing" The National Anthem

A national anthem cannot be "enforced," prominent patriots and music lovers asserted in an inquiry just completed by the Woman's Home Companion.

"If a national song cannot hold its place in the hearts of a people without wire-pulling and legislative decree, it is not truly an expression of a country," Helen Tuttle Hallie replied on behalf of American women. Such an anthem, written at any given period in the development of a nation and bolstered up merely by law, is useless, the symposium brought out.

"Times change—the national mood changes," the women's jury decided. "Americans in each succeeding generation will cherish those songs which seem best to express old traditions and new aspirations. An act of Congress might compel the performance of certain songs on public occasions, but it can never force the people to keep genuinely alive a song they do not like."

The jury's objection to the Star Spangled Banner were that it is too warlike and gives children a one-sided idea of patriotism; that it is a drinking song originally roared in British taverns. Further objection was that it is an "occasional" song, inspiring in a great national crisis, but it is rather flat at other times. Some of those interviewed added that it is unsingable except by experts.

Chevrolet Co. Completes Docks on the Great Lakes

The Chevrolet Motor Company has just completed one of the largest and finest inland docks on the Great Lakes at Saginaw, Mich. It was put into use recently when a lake freighter entered the Saginaw river with a cargo of pig iron for the Chevrolet foundry here. The ship's arrival signalled Saginaw's entry into the list of modern ports, and the completion of the dock augments Chevrolet's already enormous local facilities.

Several years ago Chevrolet's officials began a study of water transportation facilities for the company's Saginaw foundry. It was decided that benefits could be gained, and a development plan involving the construction of a dock, a turning basin and dredging of the Saginaw river was worked out.

Operations began last year. While the dock was under construction a turning basin capable of turning a 500-foot boat was dredged and the river was dug to a mean depth of 17 feet. The latter project is the factor which linked Saginaw with the Great Lakes for heavy freight transportation.
